Cormac McCarthy's The Road: Death, Love, and a Dying Earth

In the book Road Cormac, McCarthy cites several memorable scenes, each of which conveys the gloom of this new world. Former associates in the gang without a twinge of conscience and doubt eat the body of their murdered companion. A group of men with a pregnant woman are walking along the road, and then they are cooked at the stake of the newborn.

The Road describes the journey south taken by a young boy and his father after an unnamed catastrophe has struck the world. The man and the boy, who also remain unnamed throughout the entire novel, travel through the rough terrain of the southeastern United States. The conditions they face are unforgiving: rotted corpses, landscapes devastated by fire, abandoned towns and houses.
