From the Potomac to the Gulf, artists were creating in the South even before it was recognized as a region. The South has contributed to America's cultural heritage with works as diverse as Benjamin Henry Latrobe's architectural plans for the nation's Capitol, the wares of the Newcomb Pottery, and Richard Clague's tonalist Louisiana bayou scenes. This comprehensive volume shows how, through the decades and centuries, the art of the South expanded from mimetic portraiture to sophisticated responses to national and international movements. The essays treat historic and current trends in the visual arts and architecture, major collections and institutions, and biographies of artists themselves. As leading experts on the region's artists and their work, editors Judith H. Bonner and Estill Curtis Pennington frame the volume's contributions with insightful overview essays on the visual arts and architecture in the American South.

John Wightman (1599-1669) was born in Staffordshire, England, the son of Edward Wightman and Frances Darbye. His father, Edward, was burned at the stake for heresy in 1612, the last of the religious martyrs in England to be put to death in such a manner. John and four of his five sons immigrated to Rhode Island in 1654. The youngest son, George, married Elizabeth Updyke. Descendants and relatives lived in New England and throughout the midwest.
